gence of the Colony from its "grant-aided status." He saw also the establishment of "a second (or even a third) sugar factory" in St. Vincent as a means of making "a big contribution to the Island's economy, besides providing much needed employment."

Sir Francis Watts concluded his observations on the resuscitation of the sugar industry in Dominica in the following terms:—

"In addition to making syrup the factory should give consideration to making so much centrifugalled muscavado sugar as can be disposed of to advantage in the Presidency. In this connexion I anticipate that the present import duty of 4/2 per 100lb. will serve as a sufficient measure of protection and no further re-adjustment of the tariff need be necessary; the matter might, however, have consideration, if circumstances call for it"

In the broad and over-all consideration of the changed sugar market condition; our comparatively very large sugar consumption; the urgent need for industrial development, and necessity to both more closely equate the two sides of our "national" trade and get off the "dole", I submit that the circumstances have arrived for a reconsideration of the advisability of resuscitating the sugar industry in Dominica.
